Activity #2

Your Digital Footprint

I can use technology safely, respectfully and responsibly.

A digital footprint is a trail of 'footprints' that you leave behind you every time you go online.

Most of the websites you visit will record your visit by taking a note of your IP (Internet Protocol) address. This is a set of numbers which is unique to your computer.

Think about the ways you use the Internet. Do you visit websites? Do you message friends? Do you download music or post photographs?

Complete your digital footprint by adding all the ways you use the Internet, including what websites you visit regularly. Compare your digital footprint with your friends and family.

Activity #3

Your Digital Footprint ~ Where Will Yours Lead?

This is your digital footprint. The picture that represents you to your friends, parents, scholarship board, future college, and future employer/s. What do you look like right now? Draw or write the apps and social media that you are currently using. Is it all good? What changes could you make to present a "better version" of yourself? Cross out  the apps that are bad, over your age, or causing you to waste time or be distracted from your studies or family activities.

Activity# 3

Personal Reflection Sheet "Food for Thought"~ Goals for Using Social Media

After what I learned today, what changes can I make to my digital habits?

Can I cut my internet, texting, chatting, gaming time in half? Can I set some time limits for my online time?

Can I remove some of the apps on my phone? Are there some apps that I should stop using NOW?

Have I Googled my name lately? What does my cyber footprint look like?

What apps will help me build a positive Google search and cyber profile?

What will I do with the time that I free up? For example, spend more time on homework/studying? Spend some time with my family?

Can I take my phone, tablet, computer etc... and show it to anyone: a friend, sibling, parent, teacher? Nothing to hide!

Will I honestly consider reporting something online like a "threat to life," to protect a friend, even if they get mad for a while?

Will I resist bullying and sharing unnecessary things or images online?

Will I respect myself and others and get adult help when I need it - before I get into trouble? Will I speak up when something is wrong!

Can I use the values I've been taught by the Church and my parents to share my faith online and in person?

What Can You Do to Keep Your Child Safe

- Teach your child to engage in constructive conversation and avoid name-calling or bullying.
- Explain what type of information should never be shared online.
- Depending upon the age and maturity level of your child, as well as your relationship with him or her, you might be able to explain why you don't want your child to access certain types of material. For example, the sex depicted in pornographic images isn't generally representative of real life or our Christian values; a young teen may not recognize that difference without your guidance.
- Let your kids know they can come to you for help if they encounter someone or something that makes them feel scared or uncomfortable.

Keep your children safer by making sure to limit the hours that your child can access the internet on his or her mobile device, and make sure to block sites that you don't deem appropriate by using parental controls. It is never too late to talk to your children and teens about apps and social media sites that you feel are inappropriate for them to be using. With good communication and a little help from web sites like Netsanity, NetSmartz, Webwisekids, and Josh Ochs, parents can keep their kids protected and balanced while getting the benefits of being online and using a mobile device!

Many apps allow users to communicate with friends by inputting their contact information; however, many apps can be abused by strangers and online sexual predators if they have a child's email address or phone number. Even when there is no public access or the option to seek out strangers, many kids hand out their user names and emails on other sites when they think it is a friend of a friend. This is one tactic online predators use to gain access to more children.

An app itself may not create any objectionable content, but that is not to say the user on the other end will not send something inappropriate to your child.

Most apps start out as a fun way to connect with friends, but if the user is not careful, online predators can take advantage of this well-meaning form of communication. Always review your child's activity and app usage. If possible, use their apps to familiarize yourself with how it works. You can also check chat history in the app and review older videos, making monitoring past conversations quite simple.

When allowing your child access to communication apps, it is wise to ensure that they understand how they work, who can see their activity, and for how long. Teaching them what is appropriate to share over ANY social media app will go a long way in preventing dangerous behaviors.

Online Safety Rules

1. I will not give out personal information such as my address, telephone number, parents' work address/telephone number, or the name and location of my school.
2. I will tell my parents or teacher right away if I come across any information that makes me feel uncomfortable or unsafe.
3. I will never agree to meet with an on-line "friend" off-line (in person) alone. If the person asking to meetup with me is legit, then they won't mind meeting me with my mom, dad, or adult sibling. Unfortunately, sometimes people pretend to be someone they are not.
4. I will never send a person my picture, (in a school uniform or anything else) without first checking with my parents. I will never send a compromising or inappropriate photo of myself, a friend or even someone I don't like. I will never use photo shop to hurt someone.
5. I will not respond to any messages that are mean or in any way make me feel uncomfortable. I will not say hurtful things about others or spread/share any kind of bullying messages.
6. I will follow family rules that are set for my safety and protection. I will be a good online citizen and not do anything that hurts other people or is against the law.
7. I will not give out any of my passwords to anyone (not even my best friend). I will keep my password list current with my parents. When I use a public computer, I will logout of the accounts I've accessed before leaving the terminal.
8. I will check with my parents before downloading or installing software, any App, or doing anything that could possibly hurt our devices or jeopardize my family's privacy.
9. I will remember that there is absolutely nothing that is private online. Delete simply means I cannot see it anymore – it can still be in the Cloud or in someone's screen shot.
10. I will remember that my parents and teachers just want me to be safe and protected. I will remember that my digital profile is what people will see when I want a scholarship, to get into a college, or my future job.
11. I will learn more about online safety and help my parents and siblings stay informed and safe too.
